[illegible][illegible]

SUPERSTARS TO SING DEATH OF BABE

SPRINGFIELD, April 11.—Herzogen (Babe) Spencer, the confessed Red Bull murderer and indicted burglar, who was shot to death in his cell in the Thompson county jail, when he was said to own had been born to the wife of Mary Houghtal here.

"One more to bear my shame," he cried "It might have been better had both died."

At the Mercy Hospital it was said that both Mary Spencer and the baby are doing well, although the baby has been in the mother's place to the extent, reckoned as a very serious case.

Spencer's arrest and conviction at Springfield, was the first of the kind.

All indications point to a great audience at Springfield this evening, when Alexander Hertzogen, Attorney Michael J. Dwyer will deliver his new lecture on Ireland's songs and customs. This lecture is based upon the songs of the Irish people, and that Babe Spencer will have an entirely new departure in this form of popular entertainment.

Mr. Dwyer will depart from the ordinary traveling lectures. He will not only sing the songs and his powers as Georgian bard will sing some famous Irish songs.

Among those to be seized by request are Moore's "Meeting of the Waters," "Love's "Felix Hoo," "Mr's. "Laurel," "Lady Dan- ferries," "Eudora," "Lionel," "Baxter's "The West's "Adagio," "The Love Song" and an air 1,000 years old and sung in Boston for the first time. "Kilnary." "The Wear- ing of the Crown" and several others.

This is Franklin Model D. It is of medium size, medium power and medium price; it is by all means the lightest automobile of the medium class. O'CONNELL IN RACE AGAIN SEES HOUSE IN DEMOCRATIC CONTROL

Congressman Joseph F. O'Connell, in an exclusive discussion of his career at Washington and the conditions that prevail in the Third District which he represents, forwarded to the BOSTON AMERICAN from the Capitol, declares that he is in the fight to win a third term and that the more pronounced will be his victory.

Congressman O'Connell believes that his constituency was particularly active in the life of the last majority campaign when he came out for Fitzgerald's candidacy. He says that the people of the district were so active that they will vote for him in another campaign.

O'Connell believes, and this will give him a great advantage in getting through the measures for which he has labored that will insure to the benefit of the district, use of his projects in the House of the Waterfront to Dorchester.

The article of Congressman O'Connell follows:

By JOSEPH F. O'CONNELL,
Congressman Third Massachusetts District.

I am a candidate for reelection to Congress, and feel quite confident that I will be returned. The country at large is beginning to realize that it is a wise policy to elect a member of Congress as long as he wishes and continues to serve his district.

I believe that I have properly represented the sentiment of the district in matters which have come before Congress and my close attention to the office since I was elected in my first term has given me a wide knowledge of the district. While I do not believe that I have been retained in office all his life, there can be no doubt that two terms as a Congressman are almost as long as a district member is re-elected in at least a third term because our greatest parliamentary body has been so long in session.

It is a notorious fact that men of the greatest brilliancy have come to Washington and have apparently been lost to the country for a few years only to emerge through the ranks of the Senate, the House of Representatives and the Supreme Court. Each member has his own friends, his own ideas in reference to government.

We meet only through committee and through the Senate and the House of Representatives. It is not until the members of the House of Representatives meet in the House of Representatives that they are able to discuss the problems of the country.

It is not until the members of the House of Representatives meet in the House of Representatives that they are able to discuss the problems of the country.

that they will be with me for a third term.

I am somewhat handicapped by reason of the fact that it is necessary for me to remain in Washington during the session of Congress. I have no retreat for this, however, because I am simply performing my duty.

As soon as the session ends I shall return to my district and personally take charge of my campaign, and I intend to do so. I am confident that I shall be able to win a third term.

I have every reason to believe that I shall be able to win a third term. I have every reason to believe that I shall be able to win a third term.

OR PEARSON'S SUCCESSFUL RULES

CHICAGO, April 11.—Near the eve of his sixtieth birthday, Dr. P. K. Pearson, the millionaire philanthropist and friend of colleges and schools, in an interview today told young men what to do to attain his age and achieve success in life. Here is his advice:

"Keep the Ten Commandments."

"Go to bed early and sleep eight hours."

"Don't worry."

"Moderation of wholesome food, sleep with your window open."

"Avoid ill temper and all extremes of emotion."

"Honesty, charity, sobriety, these are the essentials of a successful career."

Some eloquent statements made by Dr. Pearson were:

"I never went to bed on a horse, and I never got up on a horse."

"When people call me a little old party, I say, 'I have been disappointed.'"

Psycho and Sap

Giving 'Em the Boot

AN ACCOMPLISHMENT IN "BOOSTING"

By MERTON E. BURKE=====

Here's a letter from a man who lives at Sheepshead Bay, Long Island, N. Y., where they run horse races. It was sent to the New York Journal and speaks for itself:

Dear Sir—In reference to putting a stop to robbing, I wish you would keep on with your good work and try to

We as large property owners of Neck Road, in the vicinity of Sheephead Bay, have been totally disgusted with the class of people the race track brings in the neighborhood. They work at the track, get poor salaries, and when Saturday comes gamble their money and have no money for their homes, which are in a dirty condition.

If Sheepshed Bay had never seen the race track element, it would have been worth five times as much, and everyone knows it.

Not long ago I tried to get the Y. M. C. A. to put a large building at the Bay, as they had done at the other end of the harbor. I knew it would be a most ideal place for all the associations, and as soon as I tried to do so the race-track gamblers killed it at the meeting of the Board of Trade. I would advise you to try and advocate putting a park for the poor at the other end of Sheepshed Bay race-track, which runs to the bay front, and to say way of thinking would be the most park in Greater New York. Now, Mr. Hearns, keep up your good work and bustle the people who are here, and we will help out a part of this nation and never amount to anything and our bay, will be truly an A. P.

Above, somewhat roughly expressed, is plain truth. Public gambling is the opposite of decent effort; it is a sore and a disgrace. It hurts every neighborhood, injures every man who touches it. It has deprived this country of the useful services of thousands of energetic men—some of the ablest, most determined, resourceful men of the country have wasted their lives as public gamblers.

Public gambling WILL be stopped. Fortunately it is only a question of time when it will disappear and be seen nowhere in the United States—not even in Wall street.
